One Year Forecasts predict the probability that a stock-market will rise over the next year. Investors should seek to invest in markets with forecasts of 60-100%, while avoiding markets with forecasts of 0-40%. Bullish = Favourable. Bearish = Unfavourable.

World Stockmarket Outlook

Sentiment and expectations drive stockmarket trends and extremes of under- or over-valuation. So it is important to monitor investor sentiment as expressed in newspapers or the internet - but equally important not to allow this crowd opinion to contaminate one's individual assessment and opinion.

That is not easy.

When everyone else is pessimistic and selling, when shares are hitting new lows and your portfolio is showing losses, then it is very difficult to see any hope. This, of course, is the very best time to be buying shares!

When stockmarkets are booming, your portfolio is appreciating rapidly and everyone can see the wonderful growth potential in these popular growth shares (which have doubled in value over the last three months!!) then it is difficult to be realistic. No one wants to be a party pooper . . . especially when you just know you will be proved wrong in the short term when those popular growth shares double again in value over the next few months (even if two years later they are worthless).

So where do we stand now? Back in 2008 and 2009, no-one wanted to know about shares. The popular opinion was that the economy was heading for a depression worse than the Great Depression. Clearly that was the time to hold our shares and scrape together whatever cash we could find to buy more.

The warning would come when investors became optimistic . . . but largely we are still waiting for that warning sign. Stockmarkets have recovered 2-3 fold in value over the last 4½ years but investors have never really become optimistic.

Facebook shares fell after their May 2012 Initial Public Offering. No boom or mania there.

Twitter shares listed at a 70% premium to their IPO price of $26 (although fell 7% on the second day of trading), but the company sought to "under-price" to avoid the Facebook mistake. One successful float does not make a boom or mania. We would get concerned if there were numerous such listings.

The boom in shares like Xero is a concern. But this is just one small business trading on a very large company valuation. The NZ Energy floats indicate there are not a lot of first time investors flooding into the stockmarket.

In the US, "Permabear" Mouriel Roubini is predicting "bubbles about to pop". That negative sentiment is, of course, bullish so we can relax and watch our portfolio continue to grow. In August last year Roubini was predicting the "world economy faces a perfect storm" and "years of gloom". The danger here is the Roubini will always be bearish . . . and once or twice per decade the stockmarket will take a small dip.

Even when sentiment improves, investors should not immediately exit the stockmarket. Improving sentiment will drive share prices higher - often many fold. Stockmarkets can easily become 2-3 times over-valued. Some individual shares can become 5-20 times over-valued. Hanging around for the last dollar may not be prudent, but the early and middle stages of a stockmarket boom can create significant wealth for investors.

Summary and Recommendation

Stockmarkets have recovered strongly over the last 4½ years. The negative pessimism has gone, but there are only isolated pockets of excessive optimism. Most likely there would be more widespread optimism (and further capital appreciation) before a major stockmarket peak and significant decline. Therefore we are reasonably happy to remain fully invested in the recommended international investment funds.

Fund Report

Scottish Oriental Smaller Companies Trust plc performed strongly over its financial year to 31 August 2013. Net assets per share rose 20.1%, compared with rises of 10.1% and 14.2% in its two benchmark indices.

The annual dividend will be raised 4.5% to 11.5 pence. That is just a 1.4% yield, with the trust's objective being "long term capital growth".

The Fund Manager is a little cautious and reports that "there are a limited number of companies trading on valuations that offer significant upside over the longer term". 7% of the portfolio is held in cash. The Manager believes economic growth will require "a recovery in external demand". Domestic consumption has grown, but "the valuations of locally focused consumer companies, especially in South East Asia, have become stretched".

of the portfolio. Despite "the poor state of the country's economy" the Manager sees "some excellent franchises with good management trading on reasonable valuations" that "will be able to prosper even if the domestic economy remains soft".

Share Repurchases and Sales

Aberforth Smaller Companies Trust plc has made two on-market share purchases, acquiring 125,000 shares for £1,244,352. The shares are trading at a 9% discount to net asset value.

Aberdeen Asian Smaller Companies Investment Trust plc has issued 60,000 new shares, in two transactions, raising £581,525. These were issued at a small premium to net asset value.

Interest Payment

Aberdeen Asian Smaller Companies Investment Trust plc's convertible unsecured load stock will trade ex-entitlement to its half yearly interest on 13 November, with payment to be made 15 November.

Investors also have the option to convert the loan stock to ordinary shares in May and November each year (and at maturity in May 2019 will have the option to convert into ordinary shares or repayment in cash).

We recommend AGAINST early conversion. Converting the loan stock early has no advantages, but with the disadvantage of losing the cash redemption option and higher income yield. The only reason for early conversion would be if the dividend on the ordinary shares rose very strongly and offered a significantly higher yield. That is not the case. The loan stock pays 3½%, yielding 2.9% on its current market value of 120½ pence. The ordinary shares offer a dividend yield of 1.0%
